

Jay Peak hosts a local food dinner fundraiser in support of Green Mountain Farm-to-School

JAY PEAK — This will mark the seventh year Jay Peak has celebrated its now legendary Mountain Mardi Gras. The week-long event includes authentic Cajun and New Orleans style lunch and dinner specials prepared by New Orleans Chef Mark Uddo and Jay Peak Food Service. Live music will be served up by local bands including Viscus, The Funkleberries, and Tammy Fletcher and The Disciples and lots of on-mountain fun like scavenger hunts and snow sculpture contests.

New this year, the Resort will also be hosting a fundraising dinner on Wednesday, February 25, for Green Mountain Farm-to-School, a nonprofit organization that provides hands-on agriculture and nutrition education for Vermont schools in the region. The menu will include New Orleans inspired fare prepared with local Vermont products. Tickets can be purchased by contacting Jay Peak Customer Service (802.327.2289 customerservice@jaypeakresort.com). The evening will include local wine, beer and appetizers from 5:30-6:30 p.m. followed by dinner and music by Cam

Cross. Go to jaypeakresort.com for more details and to read the full tantalizing menu.

"The event gets better and better every year," said Jake Webster, VP of Real Estate Development for the Resort and founder of Jay Peak's Mountain Mardi Gras. "We're really excited about the addition of the Green Mountain Farm-to-School fundraising dinner this year. It feels good to support a local, worthwhile cause and GMFTS fits perfectly with Mardi Gras week's theme of good food and fun, as well as Jay Peak's year around commitment to community, agriculture, education, and health."

Got to jaypeakresort.com for more details on Mardi Gras, snow conditions, or any other Resort information.

Jay Peak Mardi Gras is sponsored by Black River Design, Blue Flame Gas, DEW Construction, Johnson Hardware & Rental, Johnson Woolen Mills, Poulin Lumber, Cocoplum Appliances, and Trowel Trades Supply Inc.